About the National Association of Local Councils

NALC is the recognised national membership and support organisation representing and promoting the interests of 9,000 local (parish and town) councils, their 80,000 local councillors and 25,000 staff in England. NALC is the only national full-time professional body that represents with local councils.

About local (parish and town) councils

Local councils are the backbone of our democracy and at the heart of many communities in England. They provide our neighbourhoods, villages and towns with a democratic voice and a structure for taking action – real people power at grassroots level.

Local councils serve electorates ranging from small rural communities to large towns and cities. They are independently elected and raise a precept from the local community, with annual expenditure totalling around £1bn. They represent approximately 18m people – nearly 25% of the population of England.

About NALC Star Councils 2016

We are excited to be running the second NALC Star Councils programme, following a very successful first year of the awards in 2015. Once again, the awards will be the only event of its kind this year and the biggest event in the sector.

The NALC Star Councils 2016 awards programme provides a fantastic opportunity to highlight and publicise the crucial role that local councils play and the power and influence that they have on communities across the county. The awards event and presentation will be a key moment in the year to bring the national network of local councils and county associations together for a celebratory occasion, to recognise their hard work and achievements. There will be significant publicity of the awards both internally to the NALC network and externally, to the wider sector and media. What's more, the awards event is once again being combined with our Annual Conference, which means it will attract a large number of people and gain even greater attention.
